Puttin' On The Hits

We are jammin'--huh! And we are slammin'--huh! Is this guy cool or what? Hollis Queens was one of the participants in Puttin' On The Hits, a lip sync contest sponsored by Delta Sigma Theta.

A O Pi Rock-A-Thon

No, it wasn't a heavy metal, party-down, happenin' event like the name may seem to indicate. Members of AOPi literally rocked in rocking chairs for the $580 they donated to Arthritis research.

The Roommate Game

The Grill Annex was the scene of scandal and raised eyebrows during Residence Hall Week. J and K apartments sponsored the Roommate Game, an offbeat version of the Newlywed Game. Roommates were asked to evaluate their roomies' last date (we found out some of us hadn't had a date in a long time), expose who had a crush on who, and what one really did before bedtime. There were a few names called but it was evident from the screams and kicks that everyone had a good time. These people make up our student body...worse yet, one of them could be your next roomie...God forbid!

Pike Fights

The Pike Fights provided entertainment for over one thousand fans. There was enough screaming and yelling that they could have been professional fights. Anyway, they were a good way to let off steam as the dreaded week of final exams approached.

The winners on Fight Night were: James Sparks, Ronnie Lee, Donald Sandars, Billy Davis, Eric Fisk, Glen Farris, Darryl Amason, Derek Depasco, David Key, Ricky Bingham, Tim Swarts, Joey Mulloy, and Eric Womsley.

Miss MTSU

The Miss MTSU pageant, won by Miss Dari Anne Tarbuk and sponsored by Sigma Beta Epsilon, drew over one thousand people to see some of the most beautiful and talented women on campus. Also included in the event was the much anticipated appearance of Miss America Kellye Cash.

Miss Tarbuk, sponsored by Delta Zeta, won not only the pageant but the "Most Talented" award as well, singing "Somewhere Over The Rainbow." Rachel Fisher won the award for most congenial.

Mr. MTSU

Outrageous! There's no other way to descibe the Mr. MTSU pageant. Alaino Delllues won the event which was sponsored by the Chi Omega sorority. The contestants kept the crowd of about 600 on the edge of their seats from beginning to end. During the modeling of casual clothes, one contestant came out wearing a T-shirt and a towel! The formal wear competition went smoothly, but after ten finalists were chosen, things got crazy again.

The final part of the competition seemed at first to be simple and not at all unusual. Each of the ten finalists chose a question from a hat. Easy, right? Well, answering an impromptu question in front of 600 people is hard. Especially when the questions aren't the average "What do you want to do with your life?" questions. One that was posed to a lucky finalist was, "If you were a mixed drink, what would you be and why?" The contestant responded that he would be a "Long Island Tea." Why? "It's well worth the money. It goes down smooth, and it hits just the right spot." Isn't that exactly what you would have said?

The Piano Man

If you think Billy Joel is just a shy, quiet, "piano man," you definately didn't see him during "The Bridge Tour." During his concert here at MTSU, Joel demonstrated the musical ability and versatility (Surprise! He plays guitar!) that made him a star.

Joel opened up his show with "A Matter Of Trust" from his latest album. He played a guitar during this song, but when the "Pressure" was on he moved to his trusty piano. In fact, he was constantly moving during the entire show--from piano to keyboards and back again.

Unlike most performers, Joel played many songs from his older albums. Among these were "Innocent Man," "Allentown," "Captain Jack," and, of course, "Piano Man." "Modern Woman," "Now Is The Time To Remember," and "Baby Grand" were some of the songs Joel played off "The Bridge." He dedicated "Baby Grand" to Ray Charles, who recorded the song with him.

Because Joel is so talented and personable, his show was a huge success. He returned four times for encores. After the last one, he spoke some memorable words. He told the audience, "If you're drunk, don't drive. Do what I do--call a limo. And whatever you do, don't take no shit from nobody!" What a guy!

Comic Weak

Comic Week was full of...uh...comics! Yeah, that's it. What better to fill a week with than with comics? Especially when that week happens to include April Fool's Day.

First of all, there was the We Can Make You Laugh game. Three comedians drew names of students in the audience to participate in a contest to see who could hold their giggles in. If the contestant could face each comedian's two minute routine, he or she would win $25. It sounded like a pretty easy task and a quick way to make a few bucks, but only three of the five contestants survived the ordeal without so much as a grin.

Last were the Comic Kazes, whose motto was "We'll make you laugh or we'll kill ourselves." They did skits, impressions, stand-up comedy, and of course their act was full of comedian vocabulary. !$&%£!

King, the Dream, (& the Klan)

April 4, 1987

175 MTSU students took part in a demonstration held in honor of the 19th anniversary of Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination. Members of the NAACP were there,and uh, oh yeah, let's not forget that the Klan was there too. Here are a few quotes from both sides.

"You can kill the dreamer, but you can never kill the dream...The battle for civil rights is far from over...Dr. King told us that freedom, justice, and equality must be fought for continuously...Freedom is not free." Earl T. Shinhoster, Southeastern Regional Director of the NAACP.

"They want everything. They're becoming the majority and we're the minority...They are just out to get everything, really." Ku Klux Klan member.

On Friday, May 1, 1987, a dedication ceremony was held for the Wikswo Telescope. The telescope was donated to MTSU this year by Mrs. John Wikswo, Sr. for the use of astronomy students. It was was made by John Wikswo, Sr. between 1949 and 1970.

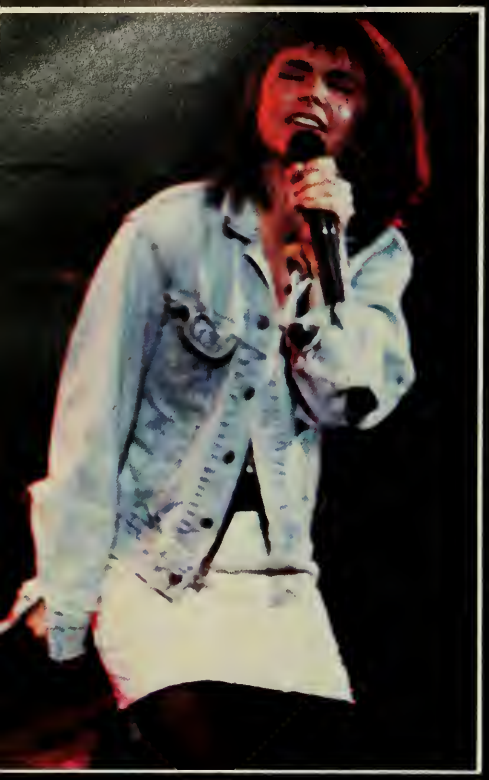
The Reckless & The Warrior



Bryan Adams brought his "Into the Fire" tour to Murphy Center as the final concert of the spring semester.

Adams' driving style had the near sellout crowd on the edge of their seats throughout the concert. Familiar songs like "It's Only Love" and "This Time" were heard along with new songs such as "Victim of Love" and "Heat of the Night."

The concert came to an end with the singing of "Summer of '69" in the second encore.

Patti Smythe, former lead singer of Scandal, opened for Adams. She belted out her new songs, including "Never Enough," and old Scandal tunes like "Warrior."

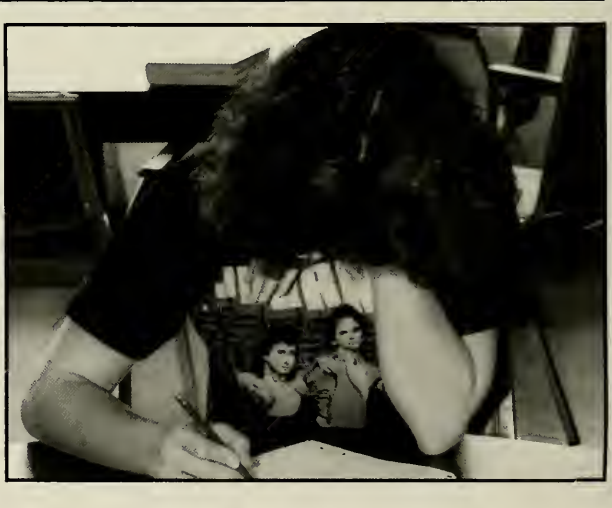
Developmental Studies

MTSU's Developmental Studies program gives students a second chance to learn a subject. In 1987, the writing lab and math lab merged to form one program. Dr. Bader, the program's new director, says that it is designed to help students who "are not quite prepared for the college cirriculum immediately after high school." Students have to earn a C or better to pass their Developmental Studies class.



Psychosexual Adjustment

In 1972, in an effort to increase course offerings in the psychology department, a survey was conducted among teachers to determine what classes should be added. One of the most frequent response was Human Sexuality. Since there were objections to this name, it was changed to Psychosexual Adjustment. Dr. Jeanette Heritage was selected as coordinator of the course. It deals with homosexuality, the way sexuality is viewed in other cultures, and attitudes, behavior, and myths about human sexuality. Psychosexual Adjustment has become one of the most popular electives on campus.

Freshman Talent Show

The New Student Talent Show, sponsored by the ASB, was hosted as the last event during New Student Week. Student Life, Student Programming, and ARA Food Services all assisted in promoting the "Welcome Week" for freshmen.

Freshmen of diversified talents graced the stage of the Tucker Theater in the Boutwell Dramatic Arts Building. Acts included various singers, a ventriloquist, a bagpiper, and a baton twirler.

Duran Duran

Duran Duran brought their "Strange Behavior 1987" tour to Starwood on July 18 with Erasure, who opened the concert.

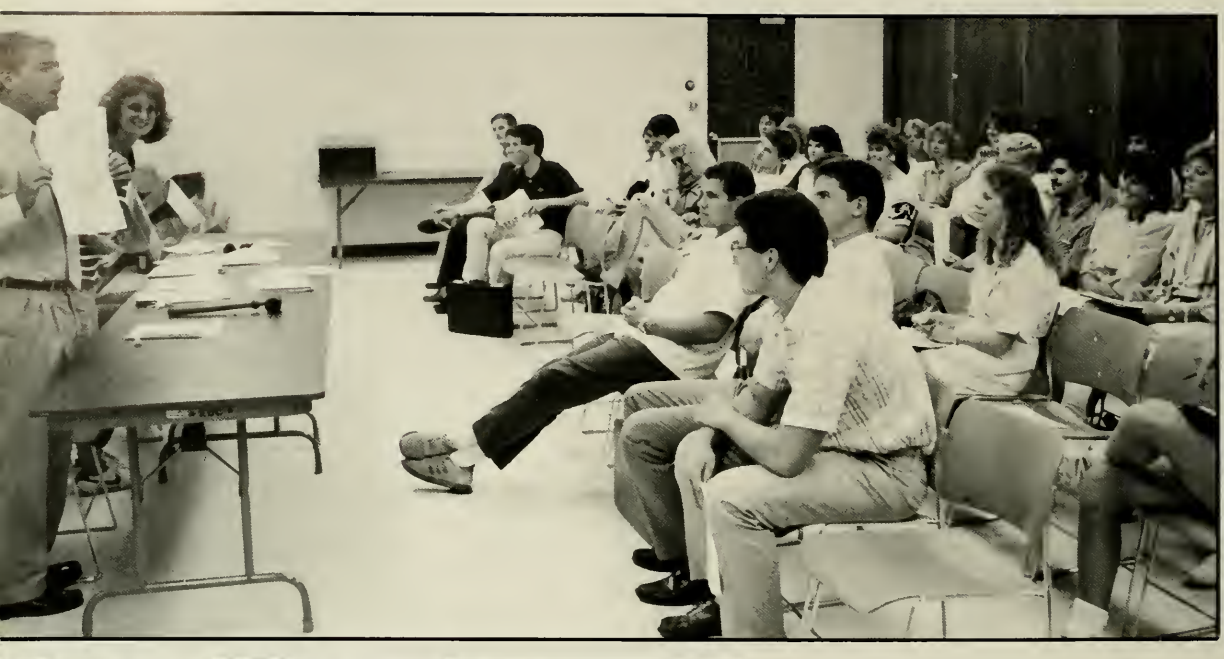
Erasure, deemed as "Madonna's favorite group" by the announcer, performed homosexually oriented songs. The group seemed appropriate in relation to the tour's theme.

Once Erasure exited, the stage darkened and the sound of a heart beating announced the arrival of Duran Duran. They broke into the theme song from the James Bond movie "A View To A Kill."

With red and blue lights flashing, "American Science" followed from the "Notorious" album. Green and orange lights provided the atmosphere for "The Union Of The Snake" from the "Rio" album.

Other favorites such as "Election Day," "Please, Please Tell Me Now," and "Hungry Like The Wolf" brought the show to an electrifying end.

ASB



The Associated Student Body is the united voice of the students in campus affairs. The ASB is structured much like the United States government; with a house, a senate, a president, two speakers, student courts and many other students, all of whom express the opinion of the student body. The ASB's responsibilities include appointments of students to university committees, student activities during the homecoming celebration, the annual charity Chili Cook-Off, and appointment of an executive cabinet and student judiciary positions.

Studio B

Recording Industry Management Students now have a second studio to record in.

Studio B, located on the first floor of the James Union Building, is the newest development in the Mass Communications Department. The project cost approximately $400,000.

In addition to having more advanced equipment than Haynes House, the studio has digital capabilities as well as recording hook-up with the Tennessee Room.

The "Evil Coneheads"

The long, hot summer of 1987 threatened to get even hotter on July 4 when the Ku Klux Klan staged a rally on the downtown square. Also present, however, was the Rainbow Coalition, who represented more reasonable thinkers of all races countered.

Prominent among the latter group and looking on were MTSU students, who carried signs and banners repudiating Klan activity in Murfreesboro.

As the 10 a.m. march time approached, armed patrolmen appeared on the rooftop of virtually every downtown building. At the urging of city fathers, most citizens stayed home. Those who came--reporters, photographers, the curious--milled quietly about, waiting.

Klan members--male and female, parents and children--gathered in the City Hall parking lot. On the square, their opposites joined in songs of community and patriotism.

As the Klan marched toward the square, shouting their angry slogans, police moved the crowds back. The white-cloaked marchers circled the square twice, and their leader ascended a platform to speak.

Within minutes, the square was virtually deserted except for Klansmen, left to spew their message of hate only to each other.

The Savage Experience

Joe Savage and his 15-member group brought a unique theatrical production to the James Union Building.

Savage used a combination of music, dance, costume changes, and stage effects to present his unique "experience." He spent most of the two hour presentation interacting with the audience by talking and dancing with them. At one point he encouraged everyone to be "himself," and they did. The crowd responded by slam dancing, singing, and invariably necking in the corner.

Employing a variety of musical genres, Savage spiced up his concert dance by starting up a chainsaw and handling large snakes onstage.

The evening was definitely a Savage Experience!

Lord Hailsham

In celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, the retired Lord High Chancellor of Great Britian, Lord Hailsham, spoke to over 7,000 people in Murphy Center about the importance of the Constitution.

The appearance of Lord Hailsham was particularly special since he is a direct decendant of Captain William Lytle, who fouded Murfreesboro.

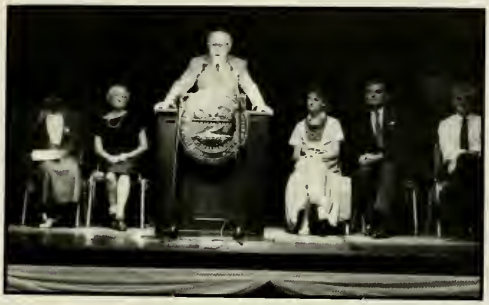
Lord Hailsham was invited to Murfreesboro by the Rutherford County Bicentenial Commission as part of a four phase plan to further understanding of the Constitution.

ASB

During the Founder's Day celebration, John Bragg of the Tennessee House of Representatives presented Associated Student Body President Holly Lentz with the original copy of the ASB Constitution.

Homecoming Director Rob Marlin said that Rep. Bragg was sorting through his personal files and came upon the original copy.

One point of interest in the original ASB Constitution is Article III., Section 4 which reads, "If the President of the ASB is a man, then the Vice President shall automatically be a woman, and vice versa."



Alpha Eta Rho and the Flying Raiders

A fly-in and open house were held at the John C. Tune airport in west Nashville on September 27. MTSU was represented by the Mu Tau chapter of Alpha Eta Rho, an international aviation fraternity, and the Flying Raiders.

The open house was held to give the public a chance to look over the new airport, which opened last year, and to promote aviation in middle Tennessee.

Alpha Eta Rho and the Flying Raiders were present as good will ambassadors, and to promote MTSU's aerospace program. They also provided assistance to the officials of the Middle Tennessee Aviation Association, who planned and ran the event.

Homebuilt and rare antique aircraft were on display and airplane and helicopter rides were given. Two individuals even won a ride over the city in a Lear jet. Proceeds went to the MTAA.

Maynard Ferguson

Jazz trumpeter Maynard Ferguson brought his "High Voltage" show to Tucker Theatre and added a special musical touch to Founders Day.

Ferguson and his band stopped at MTSU during their tour to promote their new album "High Voltage." The show contained several selections from the album including "Jack Usage," and "Walking on the Pier at Night."

Ferguson also played many familiar tunes such as "Birdland," "Gonna Fly Now (Theme from Rocky)," and "Stardust."

The Maynard Ferguson concert was sponsored by the Special Events Committee.

BLUE RAIDERS

RUGBY CLUB

The MTSU Rugby Club was founded in 1980 to provide a social and athletic outlet for university students. The club is unique because of it's dual nature: it is both athletic and social. The club does not hold tryouts or cut any players. Anyone who wants to play is welcome.

The players are unique for the same reasons: they are as committed to having fun as they are to outstanding athletics. Anyone who has attended a rugby party can attest to this fact.

In fact, the party is as much a part of rugby as the game. The home team traditionally hosts a party for the visiting team at which the players can get to know each other, sing traditional rugby songs, and talk over the exciting points of the game.

Although the Rugby Club represents MTSU, it is not funded or sponsored by the university, and is self-governing. The club is proud, as well as protective, of its autonomous nature.

Rugby is not NCAA sanctioned, but has its own established hierarchy. MTSU is in the Mid-South conference along with the University of Tennessee, Tennessee Tech, Vanderbilt, Old Miss, Rhodes College and Memphis State.

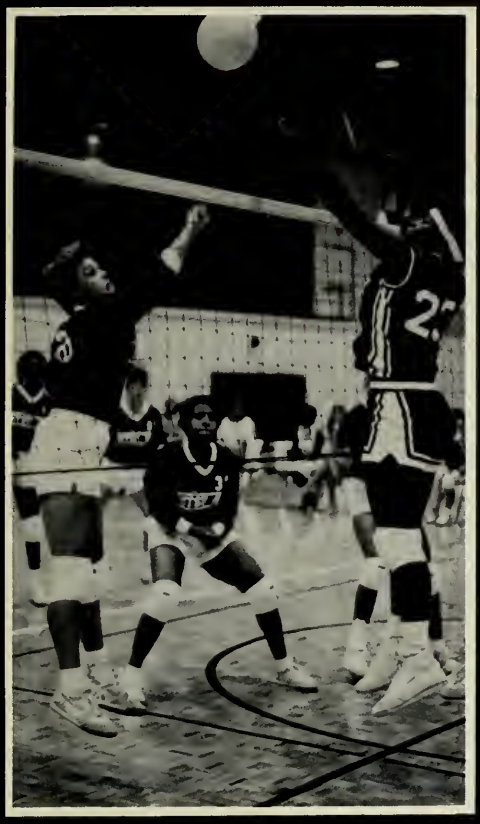
SPORTS

The Middle Tennessee State University football team opened it's 1987 campaign on a high-note with a record setting performance against rival Tennessee State University at Vanderbilt Stadium. A crowd of over 30,000 was on hand for the game.

The Blue Raiders posted a lopsided 55-19 victory in a game that was built up to be a defensive showcase. However, MTSU took the opening kickoff and marched 64 yards in ten plays to take a 7-0 lead.

From that point the Raiders never looked back as they scored on seven of their first eight offensive possessions, rolling up a 42-7 half-time edge.



MTSU added two second half touchdowns to close out the scoring.

Sophomore place-kicker Joe Lisle turned in a gem of a game. Lisle, playing in his first collegiate football game, booted two field goals and added seven extra points to the score.

Record performances were turned in by split end Robert Alford and Gerald Anderson. Alford broke a 22 year old school record for yards received in a game with 168 yards on six receptions.

Anderson tied a school record he already held with 11 other people by scoring three touchdowns.

MTSU also set team records on offense. The Raider offense scored more points against TSU than any other opponent in the history of the school. They also rolled up a total of 513 yards.

After being left out of the NCAA Division 1-AA poll, the Raiders were ranked fifth in the nation after their season opening victory.

CAREER DAY

"I'm good at everything," said recent graduate Vincent King, "but I'm also being picky about the job that I get." King along with other MTSU students attended the annual Career Day at Murphy Center. Professionals from many fields were available to answer questions posed by interested students. Nissan and Channel 2 were among many businesses that came.

Scavenger Hunt

One event of MTSU's 1987 Homecoming Week was the Scavenger Hunt. Organizations had to find as many items from a certain list within a two hour time period. Some of the wilder items on the list were a picture of the group with a cow, a railroad tie, an animal skull, and a '57 Chevy. The competitors went to great extremes to get as many items as they could in the two hour limit. One group actually performed head surgery on a dead frog to get its skull.

"I Will Follow"

The "U2 experience" actually began over a week before the appearance of the Irish band. Devoted fans began camping outside the Murphy Center box office, even though the concert was just a rumor. The night before tickets were sold, over 300 fans endured the coldest night of the season to date. Wrapped in blankets, sleeping bags, and anything else that provided warmth, fans determined to get seats shared a common bond in their desire to see one of the biggest headliners of the year.

The Bodeans, a five man band from Wisconsin, began the night with their own brand of 80's rock. The fast paced song "69 Blues" was the highlight of their set. When the Bodeans finished they were greeted with a standing ovation from the excited crowd.

During intermission, the crowd responded with cheers to preshow music consisting of the Beatle's "Twist and Shout" and "All You Need Is Love." The audience united in song and the mood was set for the appearance of U2. This was an unusual response to recorded music used during stage set up, and was one that only a band like U2 could inspire.

The crowd came to their feet as U2 took the stage. The band immediately began their performance with "Where the Streets Have No Name" followed by their older hit "I Will Follow." U2 played their songs with such intensity that it seemed as if Bono was singing to each fan in the audience personally.

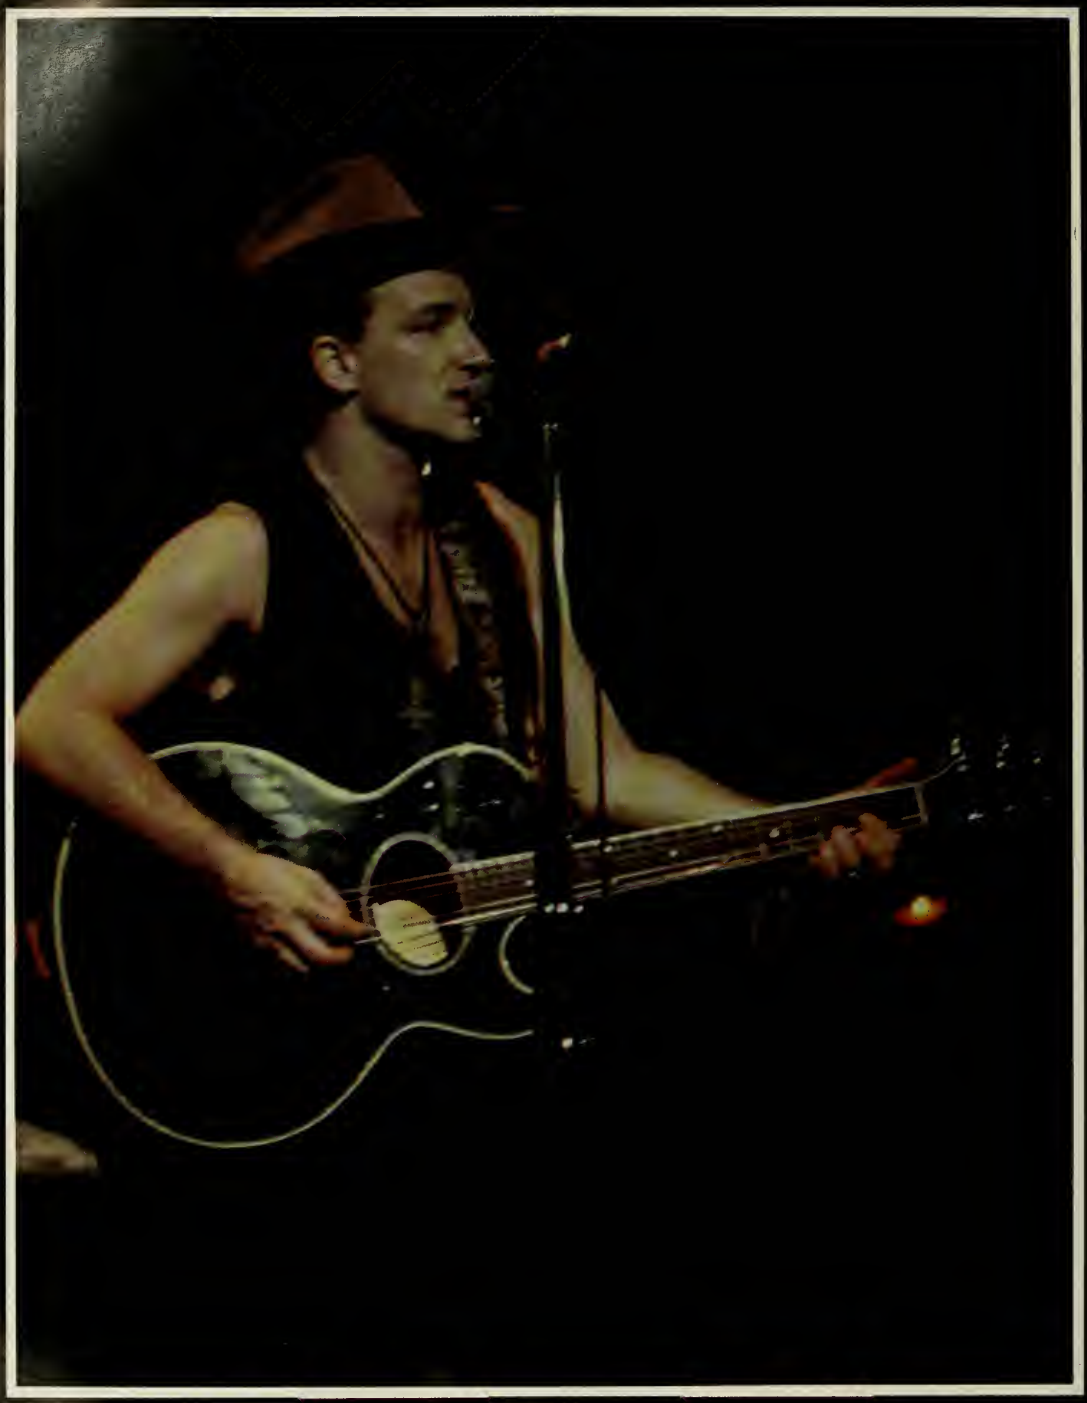
Bono teased the crowd as he sang a mixture of famous lines from hits such as "Ruby Tuesday" and "Sympathy With the Devil." Just when the crowd began to sing with him, he changed the song. However, when he sang "Sunday Bloody Sunday," everyone in Murpy Center sang, creating a feeling of unity only a crowd of such devotion could supply. U2 kept the feeling going with "New Year's Day" and "Pride(In The Name Of Love)," which ended the set.

Immediately, lighters flicked on and hands began to clap. U2 returned for a five song encore including "Bullet The Blue Sky." But the biggest surprise was the guest appearance of Wynonna Judd, who sang an old Curtis Mayfield song "People Get Ready" as Bono whispered the lyrics to her. The last song of the encore was "40." While the members of the band left the stage one by one, all 12,000 fans continued to sing the chorus "How long, how long must we sing this song."

There were many different feelings as the mixture of people left the concert. Some said it was the concert event of the year and maybe the best for years to come. Others said it was the closest one could ever get to a true religious experience. Many left the concert "somewhat slightly dazed..."



YAMAHA

WMOT

Jazz enthusiasts in the middle Tennessee area are very familiar with MTSU. At 89 on the FM dial, MTSU's own radio station, WMOT, daily broadcasts the best in jazz. In many respects WMOT operates like any other radio station. They have a set format, up-to-date news, and all the necessary office personnel as well as DJ's. But WMOT is unique in that its DJ's are broadcast students gaining valuable experience in their field. The station is supported by funds gained through donations and listener fund-drives. This allows more airtime for music and information instead of commercials. Unlike commercial stations, WMOT DJ's select music from listener requests and their own jazz tastes with no interference from structured playlists.

One such DJ, senior Ken Carrington, is perhaps one of the most dynamic student DJ's. Having worked as an amateur comedian, Carrington hopes to use his talents and experience for a career in broadcast audio. A long-time jazz connoisseur, Carrington tries to bring a laid-back atmosphere to his show. He started out as a late-night DJ, but has since been promoted to the morning shift. After being asked whether he preferred a late or early shift, Carrington responded with "I can get in the mood anytime." He later added that after graduation he would prefer to work a late-night shift in a small renegade station so that he could really be himself.

MIND'S EYE

At the end of November, the Fine Arts Committee presented one of its most ambitious and provocative shows of the year. This collage of performance art entitled "Mind's Eye" was billed as "an evening of fourth dimensional multi-media performences" and proved to be exactly that. The evening contained a hodge podge of dance, music, and monologue with the frequent use of video screens.

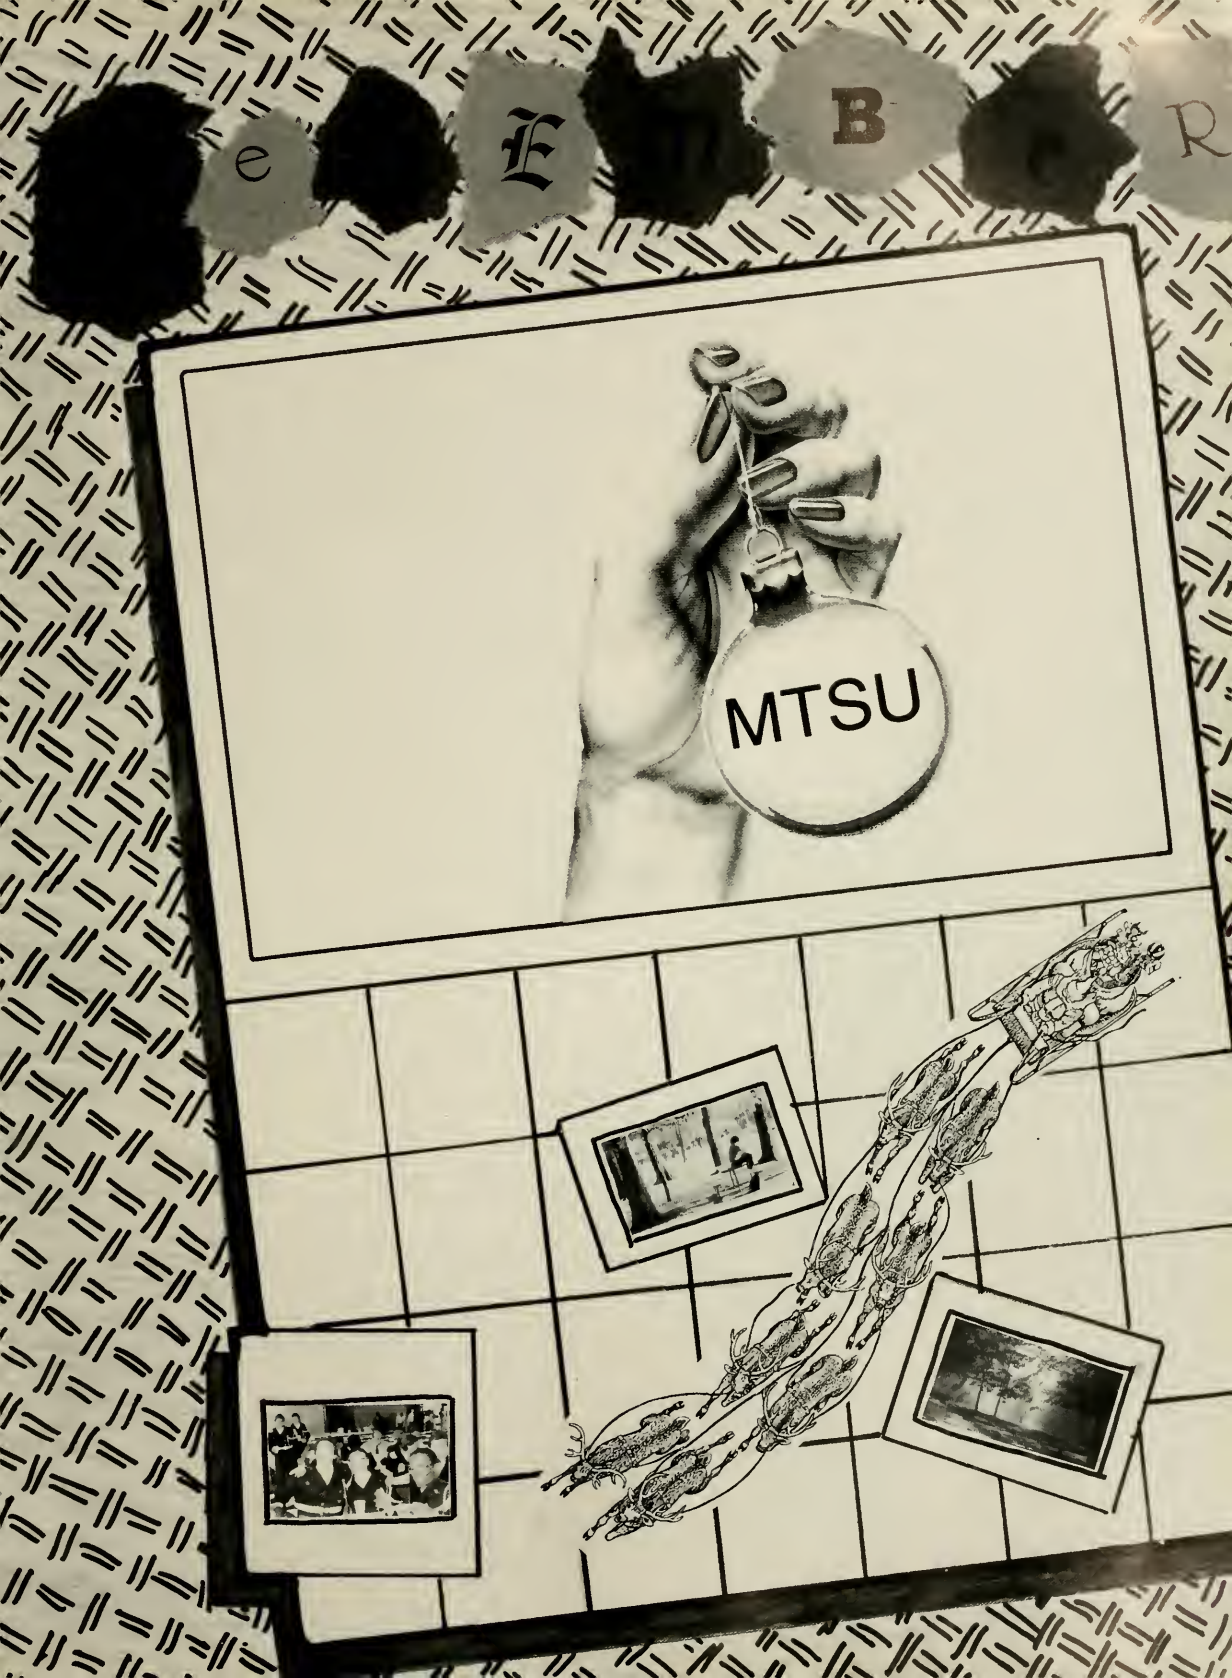
Below: An important part of the show was the reaction of light to the dancers' black costumes. In this final sequence, projected bands of light outline the dancers' forms while leaving faint traces of the black background.

Whitney Houston

Anxious fans, from all walks of life, gathered in Murphy Center anticipating a great concert--they weren't disappointed. The crowd cheered as Whitney Houston took the stage and belted out material from her two albums "Whitney" and "Whitney Houston."

In her opening act, Jonathan Butler, a rising young jazz singer, sparked the audience's enthusiasm with his talented guitar playing and jazzy beat. Concert-goers responded to Butler's music by clapping and dancing in the aisles.

Whitney highlighted her concert by singing some of her slower melodies such as "Saving All My Love For You," "I Know Him So Well," and "For The Love of You." After her last song, Whitney left the stage while her fans cheered for more. She came back for one encore, and sang her Grammy award winning song "Greatest Love of All."



MTSU

MTSU Dance Club

The MTSU Performing Arts Club, commonly referred to as the Dance Club, performs one show a semester for the MTSU and Murfreesboro communities. Students and non-students choreograph and perform all the dances in the show. Occasionally, music is composed for the dances by local musicians.

The club is also involved with university activities and has a scholarship fund provided by proceeds from the shows.

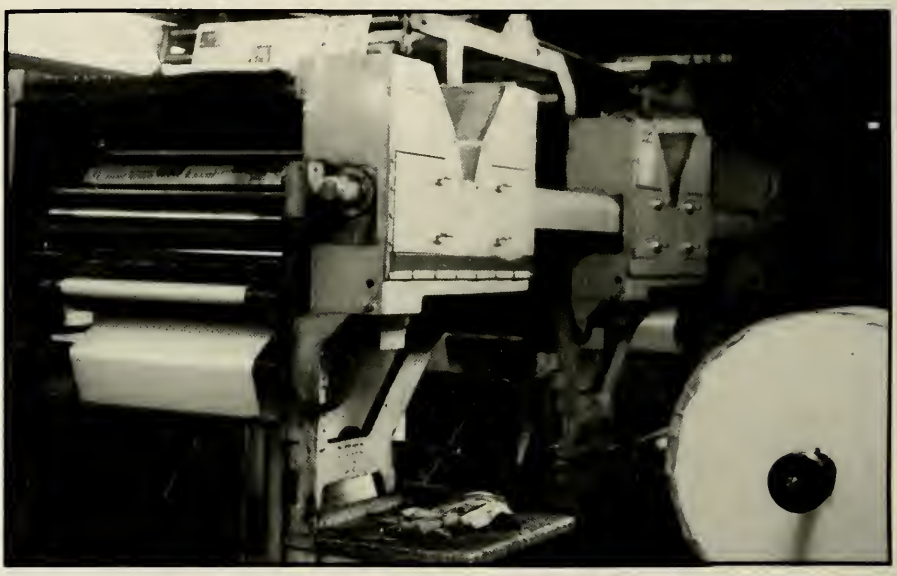
SIDELINES



When a newspaper is picked up and read by someone they usually concentrate on what they're reading — not how it got on the page. What appears in that newspaper is put there by people. There are writers who write, photographers who take pictures, layout personnel who decide what goes where, editors who decide what you read, production managers who get the paper out on time and an ad staff that sells advertising space to pay expenses. All of these factors are involved in what you read every Tuesday and Friday when Sidelines comes out.

The students who work for Sidelines are just that — students. They have full class loads and sometimes other jobs. They work for the paper for experience in journalism, graphics or photography. Some people even work there for the fun of it.

The Sidelines office is a hectic place — editors yelling, photographers moaning — and everyone always seems to watching the clock. This is all done so that you can read the latest news, sports stories and movie reviews. Maybe you should think about that the next time you pick up a copy of Sidelines.

MURF. NITES

College life. These two little words stir many images in students' minds. To some, it means a seeminglyinfinite money problem (in other words, there's not enough), studying, and an occassional fight with one's roommate. But between all this, students do find time to relieve tension. Good food, fast music, fine spirits, and close friends are all part of the fun.

Murfreesboro offers a variety of "nightlife" spots and happenings. If you enjoy dancing and music, you can choose from live performances of local and travelling musicians or d.j.'s. Granted, most of the night action in Murfreesboro is for those who are 21 or older, but there are a few restuarant bars or dry bars that offer the night club atomsphere for those under the drinking age.

DR. K's MC 151

Dr. Edward Kimbrell's Mass Comm 151 is definitely a class that needs to be experienced. Dr. Kimbrell is the sometimes funny, sometimes serious professor that teaches students about the developments of mediums and their contributions to the world. What makes the class so interesting is that he takes a different approach to teaching it. He uses a negative cast to help students see the reality of the media business and society.

Dr. Kimbrell is a graduate of Northwestern University, where he received his B.S. and master's degrees in Broadcasting. He also received a Ph.d in International Communications from the University of Missouri.

He enjoys teaching the class, and tries to make the learning process more enjoyable for students. He says, however, that students must be willing to put out the time and energy to learn from the class. If you have had it, you know what he's talking about!

MTSU's #1 fan

He is MTSU's biggest fan, but he's not generally interested in the sporting events, cultural or social activities that the average fan appreciates and raves over. He's dedicated and interested in those who participate in and make those events happen...the students.

His name is Sam Ingram.

Dr. Ingram has given a personal touch to the Office of the President. At all times he is accessible to any student, any faculty member and will even tell you to "stop by if you are in the neighborhood." His administration maintains an open door policy.

College: A foundation of life

Whether we like it or not, though most of the time we don't think about it, we are all part of a community. Our families, our friends, the people we go to school with, work with, drink with, live with, vote with; they all make up the communities we operate within.

Some people like to brag about how they've learned to be "self-reliant," or that "they don't need anyone else." That's garbage. We need other people. And learning to live with them, learning to form a community, is crucial.

College can be an important part of that process in a multitude of ways. We share classrooms, dorms (sorry, residence halls), the Grill, a bench, a football field, a six-pack of Shaffer, sidewalks, television sets and copies of the Midlander with people. These people may not look like us, act like us, or even own the same skateboard as us, but we have to learn to accept their differences if we are to make the most of our college experience.

The amazing thing about college is the number of different communities that manage to exist within the boundaries, both physical and theoretical, of "Middle Tennessee State University." Some of these communities are dependent on each other (fraternities and sororities, booster clubs and athletic teams). Some are opposed to their counterparts (the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans) but most just exist...setting up their own version of reality.

As university students (or as the university staff) we have the opportunity to experience many of these communities whether they are clubs, frats, discussion groups or a bunch of drunk guys hooting down Tammy Faye Bakker on Nightline at some bar. The time spent here can be used to obtain not only a textbook education, but an education in (yep, pretentious point ahead) life (warned you).

Classes are only part of a university education. Obvious, and I seem to keep saying that, but true. But the "extra-cirricular" lives of most college students don't have advisors. We can only trust ourselves to get the most out of this "community." And we can only trust ourselves to use what we have learned.

When (maybe if would be a better word) you read this, years after you've left MTSU, remember some of the things you saw and felt for the first time when you were here. Burrow into your past and remember the good and the bad. Continue to call on these memories long after you've forgotten the reasons for Shay's rebellion. Keep trying to build a better community with what you've learned and keep your college education alive.

The Year In Review

The world is quite complicated at times. There are threats of war, social and political upheavals, and health related disasters. On the flip side of the serious implications of living in a fast-paced, mobile society there are laughter, friends, and the basic needs that bind us together through the very things that bring triumph and disaster. This is our year in review at Middle Tennessee State University. Someday we'll look back and see how far we've come and realize our potential for so much more.

Generations come and go but it makes no difference. The sun rises and sets and hurries around to rise again. The wind blows south and north, here and there, twisting back and forth, getting nowhere. The rivers run into the sea but the sea is never full, and the water returns again to the rivers, and flows again to the sea....

Everything is unutterably weary and tiresome.
No matter how much we see, we are never satisfied; No matter how much we hear, we are not content. So I saw that there is nothing better for men than that they should be happy in their work, for that is what they are here for, and no one can bring them back to life to enjoy what will be in the future, so let them enjoy it now.
